AS TO CIRCULATION.

During January the Journal's circulation was the qualifying daily average of 61,463 copies.

What May Be.
The coming storm may be a help or a hindrance, and the outcome will depend upon whether the miner takes the same amount off or more than he gives back.

Teaching the "Ghosts." - The "ghosts" of the past are often more active now than they have been in many years. The present generation has learned the value of these "goblins," and is trying to make the most of them.

Great Record for January.

The Minneapolis Journal has again demonstrated its ability to meet the demands of the times by publishing a fine edition of the paper in January. Its circulation increased 50 per cent in January, a fact which shows the gratifying growth of the Journal's influence.
